DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

The I.D.S. filed on 3/15/04 has been considered by the Examiner. However, the Japan and or other foreign documents, if they have not been written in English, are considered to the extent that could be understood by the English abstract and drawings.

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Fujimoto (US 6678221).

In regard to claim 1, Fujimoto teaches a spindle motor which drives the rotation of an optical disc (fig. 1 element 16); a light pickup which emits laser light to said optical disc and in turn receives reflective light from said optical disc in order to scan and reproduce information recorded on said optical disc (fig. 1 element 2); a motor control unit which controls said spindle motor based on a sync signal contained in a reproducing signal output from said light pickup at the time of reproduction (fig. 1 element 14); a mirror detection unit which detects mirror information in relation to scanned mirror surfaces on said optical disc based on an RF signal corresponding to said reproducing signal when said optical disc runs away (fig. 1 element 1 see also fig. 16 elements A30 and A31); and a rotation control unit which detects the direction of rotation of said optical disc based on said mirror information detected by said mirror detection unit (column 16 lines 19-24. Fujimoto teaches the tracking in the mirror area. If the disc was going the wrong way after coming out of the mirror area the apparatus would know because of the incorrect sync signal).

In regard to claim 5, Fujimoto teaches rotation control unit applies said spindle motor with a brake signal in the direction opposite to said detected direction of rotation (column 11 lines 52-56 when the pickup moves to an inner radius of the disc it must slow down therefore there must be a brake signal).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-5 and 6-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art fails to teach detecting the direction of the disc based on counting mirror pulses.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ono (US 6990048) teaches the use of mirror areas to count tracks.
